

NARROW ESCAPE OF PASSENGERS

Pennsylvania Limited Train Meets With Mishap, But No One Is Killed In Wreck.

SLEEPERS WENT DOWN OVER BANK

Wonderful Escape From Death By The Passengers And Train Crew---Track Was Torn Up By Broken Car.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Johnstown, Pa., Feb. 23.—The Pennsylvania railroad's eighteen hour special, westbound, was wrecked at Black Diamond, seven miles east of Johnstown, shortly after midnight. There were 54 passengers on the train, nearly everyone of them were injured.

Many Injured.
John F. Kline, postmaster of Joliet, Ill., was badly crushed about the head and probably fatally injured. Among the others hurt were: Frederick A. Busse, postmaster of Chicago; Samuel F. Nixon, theatrical proprietor, Pittsburgh; Wilfred Samuels, Elgin; F. H. Hubbard, New York; J. W. Wood, Wilson, Marion, Ind.; Thomas Bauer, Lafayette, Ind.; Felix Ismark, Philadelphia; W. A. Singer, LaSalle theatre, Chicago; George S. Wood, Colonial theatre, Chicago; Lightner Henderson; J. J. Kern, ex-state's attorney; George B. Mellon; C. W. Wiegler; E. O. Come; Viris Brown; A. R. Urion, attorney; D. W. Wisen; Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Lehr; Ivila Rothschilds, all of Chicago.

No One Killed.
The Pennsylvania officials say no one was killed, and that Kline was the only person fatally hurt. The train running about fifty miles an hour was 35 minutes late and when rounding a sharp curve the Pullman coaches left the rails and plunged over a six foot embankment into the river.

Very Retentive.
All attempts to obtain information from the railroad officials has been met with rebuffs at every hand.

Milwaukee Victim.
Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 23.—Herman Fehr, who was hurt in the wreck of the Pennsylvania flyer at Johnstown, Pa., is a lawyer and manager of the Alhambra theatre here. He wires he is not badly hurt.

The accident was caused by a break in the rigging on the first Pullman dropping and tearing up a rail for three hundred yards. The engine and combination car did not leave the track, but four Pullmans following plunged down over the embankment to the river bank about 100 feet below and overturned when they reached the bottom.

Some of the seriously injured were brought to this city and others taken to Altoona. A greater number of those whose injuries are slight continued on the westbound special train. Among the additional to the injured is F. J. Murphy of Joliet, with contusions and badly bruised.

DEAN HENRY ACCOMPLISHED MUCH IN THE WHOLE STATE

Retiring Head Of The College Of Agriculture Has Served For Twenty-Seven Years Past.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Feb. 23.—Seldom has a change occurred in a university faculty more sincerely regretted than the resignation of Dean W. A. Henry, originator and successful builder of the University of Wisconsin College of Agriculture, which took place this week. A "before and after" picture of the work of Dean Henry at Madison would present a wonderful contrast. He began with one building, a simple cow stable, wherein was tied an ordinary specimen of the bovine species, even that was not "before," because before Dean Henry came 27 years ago there was no such thing as a Wisconsin college of agriculture. The old cow stable was the beginning of his school. Now the institution has grown to such numbers and so wide influence as to form one of the most important and popular departments of the state's educational system. All most every farm in Wisconsin enjoys the blessings of discoveries and new methods originated under the eye of Dean Henry. And there is no agricultural people in the world who have not heard of D. A. Henry or of the great agricultural educators and scientists whom he has gathered around him as a faculty. Both in lines of practical education and in scientific research, he has been wonderfully successful and has maintained a balance, a freedom from extremes that has made his work the more effective. The boys come from the farm and are taught by books, by lectures, by scientific demonstrations, and finally by application of the principle, "one learns to do by doing." They learn the scientific method of building fences, barns, and outbuildings. And then are put to work to do it themselves. But while the state rejoices in the practical educational work accomplished by Dean Henry and in the establishment throughout the commonwealth of a wholesome appreciation of the value of agricultural education, his greatest achievements have been due to the devotion of generous portions of the time of his faculty subordinates to scientific research. Dean Henry gathered about him the best scientists available, set them to work teaching part of the time and then told them, "go make what discoveries you can that will make easier the way of the tiller of the soil; find out how to make two blades of grass thrive where one has hitherto existed; contribute something to the state and nation that will add to the return of the farmer for his toil." Thus for 27 years Dean Henry labored, until age has come upon him and the regents of the university granted his request that he be relieved of his work, but only after he had consented to become professor emeritus, and had promised to give as much continued effort to the university as health and strength permitted.

Two names are mentioned prominently among a score of possible successors, Ransome A. Moore, professor of agronomy, known the world over for his discovery of the formula for prevention of oat smut, is said to be a leading possibility. He is young, vigorous, has made many valuable contributions to agricultural knowledge, and is one of the most widely known and most popular men of the state. His experiments resulting in an effective preventive of smut in oats has saved farmers millions of dollars in yield and quality of crop, and he has also done most valuable work in perfecting new varieties of seeds for farm products. Professor S. M. Babcock, inventor of the famous Babcock milk test, would doubtless become dean were it not that he is an old man and desirous of enjoying some rest from a life of close attention to instructional and research work. Another name mentioned is that of Professor H. E. Russell, bacteriologist of Wisconsin.

A son of Dean Henry has a fine peach orchard in Connecticut, and here, in most congenial surroundings, he has spent the greater part of Dean Henry's remaining years. He hopes to accomplish a good deal of literary work and conduct some agricultural and horticultural experiments, but will remain in fairly close touch with the Wisconsin college of agriculture.

ROOSEVELT SPOKE TO STUDENTS TODAY

President Making First Visit to His Alma Mater Since Taking First Oath.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Cambridge, Mass., Feb. 23.—Theodore Roosevelt paid his first visit to his alma mater today since becoming President of the United States. The President made no effort to conceal his pleasure at the opportunity to revisit the scenes of his college days and to walk again across the historic Harvard campus. The students, too, were glad to see him and they turned out en masse to do him honor. It was as a Harvard man that he was greeted, not as President of the United States, and the informality of the occasion was especially pleasing to Mr. Roosevelt. This afternoon, President Roosevelt delivered an address in the living room of the Harvard Union, under the joint auspices of the Union and the Harvard Political club. The address was simply an informal talk to the undergraduates and Harvard men generally. This evening the President will visit the quarters of the Porcellain Club, of which he was a member while in college and which his son, Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., will probably join at an early date. The President and his family will leave here in time to reach Washington by Monday morning.

WEDDING POSTPONED, DATE BEING JONAH

"Kid" Herman of Fighting Rep. Will Get Hooked Up in Bang-up Fashion Tomorrow.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Chicago, Ill., Feb. 23.—Landfield Graff—On Sunday, Feb. 24, 1907, at the Unity Clubhouse, Miss Matilda Graff to Mr. Herman Landfield, known to the fighting world as "Kid" Herman.

For the "Kid" is "going" to be married in the morning, or rather in the evening, for 5 p. m. is the hour fixed for the ceremony. The affair was originally set for today, but on looking at the calendar the "Kid" said "no" for his. So it was deferred one day. And it's going to be a swell, bang-up affair. The bride-elect belongs to the best German society in Chicago and there is expected to be a great outpouring of guests for the ceremony. Though this will mark the "Kid's" debut in society, he does not purpose to go back on his old friends. When the invitations were sent out for the wedding the list included the names of many of the lads who formerly worked at the bench side, by side with Herman. In those days the "Kid" was a brush maker and the only match making he did was to engage in a Saturday night bout for $10 in a hall over a saloon in West Randolph street.

MORSE CONTROLS ATLANTIC COAST OF NORTH AMERICA

Charles Wyman Morse Has Become Shipping Magnate, And His Rise Rivals That Of Harriman.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

New York, Feb. 23.—From the rural community of Bath, Me., a quarter of a century ago to a "captain of industry" controlling practically every coast steamship line from New Brunswick to the Gulf of Mexico, Charles Wyman Morse, whose recent ventures have again caused New York financiers to sit up and take notice. The methods and successes of Morse—ice king, owner of a chain of banks and steamship magnate—can be compared only to the amazing celerity, secrecy and force with which E. H. Harriman has conducted his unparalleled campaign in the railroad world.

Mr. Morse has been balked for the time being in his efforts to buy from the New Haven railroad line of Sound steamers. But it is believed that he will ultimately attain his object, for he usually gets what he goes after. He now owns all the lines of steamships plying the Hudson river. In 1901 he picked up the Boston & Portland steamship company, then the Boston & Kennebec steamship company; then the Boston & Bangor steamship company, and then the international steamship company, which put him in control of all the lines running out of Boston to the Maine coast. His next acquisition was the splendid Metropolitan steamship company, operating between Boston and New York. Next he gobbled up the Clyde line, operating from Boston and New York to the south. This made his steamship holding greater than those of any other man in the country.

Should his negotiations with the New Haven company terminate successfully, Mr. Morse will probably bring all of his various corporations under the control of one parent company, which may possibly be the Hudson River Steamboat Company. That would probably mean a capitalization somewhat in excess of $100,000,000. With all his big deals and all his successes Morse still remains something of an enigma to New York financiers. They have never been able to exactly size him up. They are even yet in doubt as to whether he is to be a real and permanent force in the financial world of the metropolis, or whether simply through a combination of shrewdness and luck he has broken into the multi-millionaire class with his dollars as a jimmy, but lacking the personal force and character necessary to place a man in the position of power.

GENERAL BOOTH STARTS ON TRIP AROUND WORLD

Sailed From London For New York---Will Remain In Charge Of Salvation Army While Absent From Headquarters.

London, Feb. 23.—To make a hurried trip around the world, to deliver public speeches almost every day, and every night, and at the same time to keep in personal touch with all the details in the management of a worldwide organization would seem almost too much to be undertaken by a man nearly eighty years of age and not in any too robust health. But this is the task mapped out by General William Booth, the founder and head of the Salvation Army, who sailed for New York today on the steamer Minneapolis. He will spend two weeks in the American metropolis before proceeding by way of Canada to take the steamer Minnesota on April 1 for Japan. After traveling through the empire of the Mikado, General Booth will go on to Peking. He plans to be back in London by July to commence another automobile campaign through the British Isles. At the conclusion of this trip, in the month of October, he will again cross the Atlantic for a two-months' trip in the United States. The amazing energy and vitality displayed by General Booth is something truly remarkable. For years he has led a life that would tax the energies of most men of half his years. He is certainly on the go, now in Norway, Sweden or some other part of Europe and soon on a hurried trip to Australia, India, or some other remote land. And no matter where he happens to be it would seem as if he never for an instant relaxes his firm grasp on the affairs of the Salvation Army as directed from the general headquarters in London. It is said that there is not a single detail in the world-wide activities and ramifications of the organization with which he is not personally acquainted. Though he has able lieutenants in the persons of the various members of his family they are never trusted to act independently in any matter of importance. Every matter is referred to General Booth before action is taken. He frequently consults with his subordinates, but always acts on his own judgment. General Booth's trip was inclined to manifest a spirit of independence and the result was a permanent severance in the relations of the father and son. Rumor has had it that General Booth will attempt a reconciliation on his forthcoming visit to New York, but those who are acquainted with the austere character and views of the aged leader do not place much stock in these reports.

FARMERS' WANTS

ARE LISTENED TO

DENATURED ALCOHOL IS SUB-

JECT FOR DEBATE IN CONGRESS.

THEY WANT DIRECT BENEFITS

Present Law is Not Effective Enough

to Meet All the Conditions

(Special Correspondence.)

Washington, D. C., February 23.—

This has been "Grange" week before congress. The American farmers are deeply concerned in several measures

pending in one House or the other of congress, and perhaps they are more deeply interested in the proposed amendment to the denatured alcohol law, than in any other measure, but several are of interest to them. The proposition is to amend the law as to permit farmers, under certain certain restrictions, to operate small distilleries, to convert material from their farms into alcohol for denatur-

ing. So greatly are they interested in this matter that the executive committee of the National Grange, consisting of Hon. N. J. Bachelder of New Hampshire, Aaron Jones of Indiana

and E. B. Norris and George P. Hampton of New York. The amendment desires to put into the bill in the House, and is now pending before the senate. It has met with some opposition on the ground that the locked stills could not be looked after so strictly as to prevent frauds on the government. The large distillers have taken the lead in this opposition, as the amendment would operate to very largely cut down their profits.

The denatured alcohol law was mainly enacted in the interest of the agricultural class, the expectation that it would come largely into use as a fuel, effecting a great saving to farmers operating machinery by power.

After the law was enacted it was discovered that the use of being of material benefit to the farmers, it would operate almost wholly to the profit of large distillers. On all farms there is always an accumulation of waste material and it was thought much of this waste material could be readily converted into alcohol, but if the farmer

has to transport this material to a distillery at some distance, and then buy

for his own use the alcohol made therefrom, at a price fixed by the dis-tiller, it would not operate to reduce the cost of his fuel, nor would it furnish any very profitable market for his waste material. To remedy this the proposition that is now pending

was suggested. It gives the commissioner of internal revenue authority to grant under such rules as he may adopt, the right to operate small stills.

Under this proposition many farmers

can manufacture about all the fuel

they will need at a very low cost.

Charcoal Stops Gas

On Your Stomach

Wonderful Absorbing Power of

Charcoal When Taken in the Form of Stuart's Charcoal

Trial Package Sent Free.

Charcoal, pure, simple charcoal, ab-

Given full sway, as was evidently intended by congress when it enacted

the present law, denatured alcohol would out largely into the sale of gasoline and kerosene for fuel purposes, and this fact aroused the active antagonism of the Standard Oil. The farmers are fighting a battle against

two great combinations of capital—

Standard Oil and the association of large distillers.

Another proposition of the farmers

is to have the commissioner of internal revenue given authority to permit

the use of denatured alcohol made from the small stills without the expense of a denaturing bonded warehouse. The executive committee of the National Grange also advocated the establishing of denaturing bonded warehouses in various sections of the country, into which alcohol may be transferred from distilleries without the payment of tax. And, in direct connection with this was another important suggestion—that the internal revenue commissioner be permitted to prescribe regulations fixing the kind and capacity of the packages, including tank cars. Without permitting

the use of tank cars for the transportation, denatured alcohol can not come into general use, because of the freight charges. Ready and cheap distribution is the crux of making denatured alcohol in general demand as a fuel. But the executive committee had still another proposition that was urged on the senate committee, with a good deal of force and earnestness,

and that was the permitting of denatured alcohol to be used in the manufacture of ether or chloroform. This proposition has called for the active opposition of ether manufacturers, especially of the American Ether company of Richmond, Virginia.

It is claimed that the denatured alcohol law has already caused a reduction in the price of wood alcohol, and the friends of the bill believe that the price of gasoline and kerosene will also be materially reduced as soon as the denatured alcohol begins in earnest. One of the purposes of the law was declared to be to extend the use of alcohol in the arts and manufactures,

but it was originally introduced and urged for the benefit of the farmers,

and, as by its operation, that class receives little benefit from it than any other, especially the large distillers,

it is not to be wondered at that the National Grange, the great organization of American farmers, has taken up the matter of getting an amendment in earnest.

The executive committee was also much interested in the free seed question, the National Grange having opposed this graft for several years. Up to the present time all efforts of the grange and other organizations of farmers have failed to secure from congress a change in the method of distribution and of the kinds distributed, but the executive committee declared it to be the intention of the grange to keep up the fight until the present method is abolished. They propose to make it rather warm for

A NEW APPEAL

TELLS THEM HOW TO REGU-

AT EVANSVILLE INSTITUTE

Also Advances an Ingenious Solution

for the Distressing Sugar-Beet

Problem—300 Attended Yesterday's Session.

C. W. McCarthy of the town of Porter, representing the American Society of Equity, urged the town of Union farmers assembled at the Ma-ge opera-house in Evansville for their annual institute yesterday, to organize for the establishment of a minimum selling price on all of their commodities. The Grange and Farmers' Alliance movements, he claimed,

had failed because they had relied

for their success on the pulling down

of some other business, because they were antagonistic to the interests of merchants. The new movement he was advocating, on the other hand,

would arouse only the hostility of the speculators against whom every man's hand ought to be turned. It would not be necessary to organize the universe. The tobacco and beet crops in this section could be absolutely controlled—protected—against decline in prices. By intelligent cooperation the products of the soil

could be marketed at the manufacturer's price, and the market

being gradually and evenly instead of being dumped on it all at once and causing an immediate slump in demand and values. Capital and labor were both strongly organized and able to reward their friends and punish their foes. The farmer had been at the mercy of the speculator and middlemans for the past 2,000 years.

Would Hold Back Over-Supply

The plan he set forth was to fix a minimum selling price for the first class agricultural products on the first day of October each year and stick to it—hold back the over-supply. If 100,000 million people consuming 20,

000,000 pounds of beef today didn't need the product at the present time

they would simply have to have it tomorrow or next day. If 12 and 15 cent prices for tobacco were right

just as true that the buyer must buy as that the producer must sell. The Lord never gave an over-production

though there is sometimes an over-supply at a given point. Somewhere everything that is grown is wanted.

Sugar-Beet Problem

While the farmer was loth to abandon the sugar-beet industry, he must not be expected to market crops at cost or less than cost just because the universe wanted cheap sugar. There was no use working simply for one's keep when it could be had without cost to the country-house. The reward for raising the crop must bear some relation to the cost of production. The Society of Equity had fixed the price of sugar-beets in Wisconsin at $6 a ton, while the Janesville factory wanted to pay $5. Six dollars was too much in some instances and $5 too

more pay. "Don't be working every day," President Gillies wanted to know who, under the Equity Society's

WISCONSIN WEATHER FORECAST

Light snow tonight or Sunday; rising temperature.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT

The contest now going on throughout the country is not between capital and labor, for capital is actively employed and labor is liberally demanded at good wages. The strife is between capital and sentiment, with capital on the defensive.

It is a peculiar warfare, brought on by peculiar conditions, for which the long-continued era of prosperity is largely responsible.

The American people are naturally restless and more or less given to envy. When times are good, the man without capital imagines that he is entitled to a larger share of the profits than he receives, while the students of political economy and speakers and writers who assume dictator shop as reformers, find much to discuss along the lines of trusts and combines, special privilege and swollen fortunes.

The nation has a President who is something of an agitator, and several of the states have governors, who have gained reputations along the same line. As a result of these various influences sentiment has developed and crystallized, all over the country, until today corporate as well as private wealth is criticised and denounced as never before.

Representative government, and American independence, have been exploited so freely that a multitude of citizens are possessed of the notion that they are about to escape from a bondage which they have long endorsed without being conscious of the fact.

"Public ownership and government control" have become household words, and regulation of everything in sight is not only a duty, but a pleasant pastime.

Very naturally the first thing to be straightened out are the railroads, because a railroad is a simple proposition, which anyone can discuss without effort, to a finality. Public sentiment today regards the men who are attempting to manage these great enterprises, as the most ignorant and incompetent.

Any state in the union can assemble a legislature, which knows more about the railroad business in a minute than the men have yet discovered who devote their lives to the work. Sixteen states are now engaged in railroad legislation, and as many more are ready to get in line.

The question of taxation has already been settled by most of them, and now the question of income is being discussed. That a two-cent flat passenger fare will finally result is to be expected. The politician and the statesman want it, because for the first time in history he is without a pass. The newspapers are not opposing it, because newspapermen are now cash buyers of transportation. The people generally want it, and so the railroads are confronted with a stone wall of sentiment clamoring for reduced fares. That sentiment will win, is not a question of doubt.

A few things will happen, as a result, and more or less unjust criticism will follow. All kinds of excursion rates will be abolished. This will be no hardship to commercial travelers, who are the most liberal patrons of the passenger department, for they have always traveled at a two-cent rate, but it will be felt by the land-seeker and occasional traveler, whose one long trip on the cars is the event of a lifetime.

Neither will there be any occasion for complaint if the train service does not improve. The state of Iowa, 25 years ago, passed some stringent railroad laws, which bankrupted every road in the state, except the east and west trunk lines. For years after the service on all the north and south lines was a burlesque, and was not improved until these lines were absorbed by combinations as feeders for some great system.

As a people we are prone to forget and sentiment sometimes absorbs reason and common sense. In good times we are apt to believe that the times will always be good, and experiences of depression are overlooked or ignored.

Less than ten years ago, we were supporting an army of workmen, and the tramp was as common as the dollar of today. Cheap-made foreign goods deluged the land, put out furnace fires, closed our factories, and flooded the country with well-patronized soup houses.

Not until public sentiment had been crystallized by humiliation and defeat did we awake to the fact that American labor and industries were dependent upon a staple protective tariff, and in spite of Bryan and his free silver falacy the people came to their senses and redeemed the country.

A long continued era of unrivaled prosperity has followed. Confidence was restored, the national treasury redeemed from insolvency, capital rewarded, labor employed and liberally paid.

Free trade democracy went into hiding and was finally lost in Bryanism. Contentment reigned throughout the land, for a few years, until the discovery was made that some people were making too much money; then a spirit of unrest developed and the seeds of a mild form of socialism commenced to take root. The agitator, the muck raker, and the reformer tilled the soil vigorously, until today the crop is abundant.

The tariff is held responsible for many imaginary ills, and many people are clamoring for revision and free trade. The experience of a few years ago is forgotten, in the great prosperity which has come to us, and, like children, we lack the elements of stability which contribute so largely to national strength.

Sentiment is a faculty of the heart, more than of the head, and, when properly controlled, it possesses many rare graces. It is a creature of fine sensibilities, and controls largely in the realm of social and religious life. It is responsible for Dowdism and all other issues of this class.

In the home it is a grace of rare beauty, and in the church it performs a helpful mission, but it is a dangerous element in the business world, where the hard and practical problems of life are met on every hand.

It absorbs common sense, dwarfs judgment, and when crystallized, as it is today on many questions, becomes a tyrant, and extremely dangerous.

In all the large centers of population, the balance of power is with the irresponsible masses. These are creatures of sentiment, swayed to and fro like the reed in the wind. A Dunne of Chicago and a Hearst of New York control with but little effort.

The nation at large has a liberal constituency of this same class, and it is easily influenced by sentiment. When thoroughly aroused it is like the mob which demands quick justice, without regard to reason or judgment.

This is the problem which confronts the country today, and it is a dangerous proposition. If the nation ever needed to exercise common sense, it needs it now. There are abuses in both the industrial and labor world, which should be corrected, but they require calm deliberation and conservative action rather than sentimental tinkering.

The court of public opinion is a just tribunal when controlled by careful consideration, but extremely dangerous when dominated by sentiment.

A PROGRAM PROPOSED AT EVANSVILLE

There's a sugar-beet problem in Rock County—the farmers are said to be looking askance at the $5-a-ton contracts proffered by the company—and C. W. McCarthy of the town of Porter has come to the rescue with a solution. He unfolded his plan to the town of Union farmers' institute at Evansville yesterday, and unless its purport has been misconstrued, it is one of the most surprisingly beautiful "square deal" propositions on record. The chances of all beet-growers to be pooled and the fellow whose sickly land nets him only 10 tons to the acre is to receive $6 per ton; the man who fares a trifle better and harvests 15 tons is to get $5 per ton; and finally the owner of the rich and fertile soil which produces 25 tons is to take $4 as his reward.

Thus the high man gets $100 for his banner crop and the low man $60. It's a system of mutual insurance applied to agriculture, with $25 shayed off the big grower's real earnings and turned over as a subsidy to help out the less unfortunate brothers who have wrestled long and manfully with the variously sterile patches of Mother Earth. The burden of compelling the same degree of genuine effort in all cases is thrust upon the Sugar Co. in a manner matter-of-fact and betokening the fullest and sincerest confidence.

The scheme might work out all right, if there was any considerable element of chance in the growing possibilities of land.

Or if altruism were to gently lead the farmer away from his unseemly habit of scrambling after the top-knot of opportunity.

Or if the aid of any of the many socialistic, paternalistic, or utopian forms of government which theorists dream about, could be invoked.

At the present writing, however, it appears to be one of those noble conceptions altogether out of harmony with the spirit of the age.

POLITICS AND POLITICIANS

Atlanta is thinking seriously of endeavoring to secure the next democratic national convention.

After March 4 there will be two graduates of West Point in the senate, Mr. Du Pont of Delaware and Mr. Briggs of New Jersey.

Floyd Hughes, who was a republican candidate for congress in Virginia last fall, has been named by President Roosevelt for collector of customs of the port of Norfolk and Portsmouth, Va.

It begins to look as though Philander C. Knox, formerly attorney general of the United States and now United States senator, may be brought forward by Keystone state republicans for the presidential nomination.

Col. R. L. Owen of Muskogee has announced his candidacy for the senate from the new state of Oklahoma. Col. Owen is a Cherokee Indian, was formerly Indian agent, and is a lawyer of considerable distinction.

Col. William J. Bryan is arranging to make a tour of Vermont in April, speaking in Burlington, Barre and other leading cities of the Green Mountain state. He will be accompanied by George Fred Williams of Boston.

A bill before the New York legislature authorizing Gov. Hughes to invite the governors of all the states to appoint delegates to a national conference to be held next October to consider uniform laws dealing with life and fire insurance, divorce, public utilities, labor, interstate commerce, corporate organizations and other subjects of general interest and importance at the present time.

BUILDING FOR MUSIC AT BLIND INSTITUTE

Recommended by the Legislative Committee Appointed to Visit State Institutions.

Included in the report made to Gov. Davidson this week by the legislative committee appointed to visit the charitable and penal institutions of the state and consisting of State Senator James H. Noble, Assemblymen N. M. Clauson, and E. D. Elver, is a recommendation for the construction of a musical building in connection with the State School for the Blind in this city. Appropriations for special purposes totaling $600,225 are asked and included in the budget is $20,000 for the Janesville institution. The committee finds that the state prison at Waupun is overtaxed to the extent that almost 100 prisoners have to sleep on cots in the corridors of the cell-house, under a double guard, a condition which is at once dangerous to health and discipline. The buildings of the School for the Deaf at Delavan are old and the grounds so crowded that new ones cannot be erected. The Northern Hospital for the Insane at Oshkosh is declared to be virtually a fire trap and the condition of the plumbing at the Mendota institution, a menace to the health of the inmates. Though no fault is found with the management of the Milwaukee women now in charge, the committee believes that the industrial school for girls at the metropolis should come under the direct supervision of the board of control. The appropriations asked for in addition to the one for Janesville are: Oshkosh, $100,000; Mendota, $123,000; Delavan, $67,500; Waukesha industrial school, $22,725; Waupun, $90,000; Sparta, $9,100; Chippewa Falls Home for the Feeble Minded, $176,500; Wales tuberculosis sanitarium, $40,000; Green Bay reformatory, $84,500.

NEW KLEIN BLOCK WILL HAVE HANDSOME FRONT

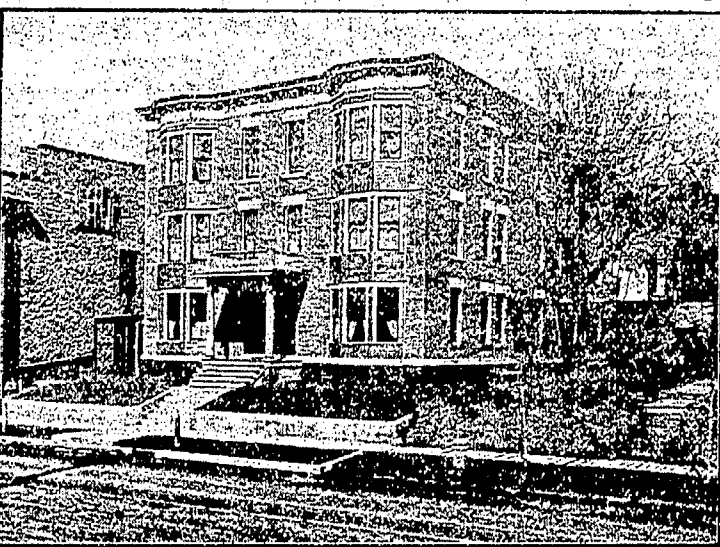

Plate Glass and Steel on Lower Floor and Rock Face Brick on Second—Two Bay Windows.

As soon as the frost is out the ground work on the new Klein block at 215 West Milwaukee street will be commenced. Architects Hilton & Sadler having completed and delivered the plans. The structure is to be of brick, two stories high and the drawings call for one of the most handsome fronts in the city. The first floor front will be of steel and plate glass and the second of rock face paving brick, similar to that used in the new Methodist church. There will be two large bay windows of galvanized iron and the cornice will be of the same material. Among the features of the front will be three carved iron heads at the lower part of the second story, one at each side and another in the center. The lower floor will either be two stories or one double store and the upper floor will be turned into two flats.

DISCOVERED NEAR JANESVILLE, A PAYING SHAFT.

Strange as it may seem, yet it is true that many people leave their own city to seek wealth in strange lands and by uncertain methods while better opportunities await them at home.

The above is but one of the money saving, money making investments by which the owner will realize immense dividends.

Not only will the owner be benefited financially but will prove an instrument of service to the general public and a benefactor to humanity. There are many beautiful lots suitably located for the erection of a similar building such as would be a constant source of income, an ornament to its location and a monument of pride to its owner, creating a demand for local labor, increasing the growth of your own town and perpetuating the strides of progress established by your predecessors. If you are interested in such a proposition, and you surely ought to be, do not waste further valuable time but at once consult HILTON & SADLER, The Architects, Janesville, Wisconsin, and they like the patriarchs of old will give you advice and information that will drive away your fears and forebodings and establish a feeling of confidence and success from which you can not fail to profit.

COMING--BERTHA KALICH, in Harrison Grey Fiske's production of "The Kreutzer Sonata."

"ALWAYS BUSY."

Recently one of Dr. Richards' patients caught sight of his daily appointment book which showed that almost every working hour of his time for weeks and weeks back had been filled to the limit.

The office reception room outside was also full of waiting patients. The party mentioned that things looked pretty busy around there.

"Put me more today than it always is with me nowadays."

"Well, you ought to be busy," replied the party. "Any man who makes the effort to do painless work deserves the support of the public."

And there's truth in that statement.

People appreciate the efforts of a man who endeavors to alleviate their sufferings.

They often enter his office as white as a sheet.

Fear deprives them of power to control their nerves and

Some actually scream before they get in his operating chair.

But under his considerate care they soon find their fears groundless, and depart with a different opinion of one dentist at least.

"Once a patient of Dr. Richards, always a patient," is the usual outcome when people put aside their prejudices and are fair minded.

Simply because

"He delivers the goods."

SAYS DOUGHERTY'S MIND IS HEALTHY

Fond du Lac Conductor Objects to Newspaper Stories Concerning Train Master.

Conductor M. J. White of Fond du Lac was in the city last evening and in conversation denied the newspaper dispatches concerning the mental condition of W. J. Dougherty, the North-Western train dispatcher who was reported to be violently insane as a result of a fatal wreck caused by an error on the part of an operator working under him.

Mr. White said that Dougherty's mind had been affected at no time and that he is now just as sane as ever.

Mr. White visited him in Kaukauna Thursday and said that he learned there that Mr. Dougherty had offered several positions, one of which was traffic manager on the Wisconsin & Northern, a branch line running north from Oshkosh.

PICTURE OF ENGINE AND CAR; EVIDENCE

North-Western Claim Agent Secured Photo to Use in Settlement for Death of Conductor.

At the Five Points crossing in Janesville this morning a photograph was taken of the locomotive and car between which Conductor John Lewis of Fond du Lac was killed at Jefferson Junction yesterday. The picture was secured by the North-Western company's claim agent and will be used as evidence in the settlement for the death. The engine is number 321, a large road locomotive, and the car is off the Pennsylvania system. It developed last night that Lewis did not fall under the wheels, but was caught between the car and engine in going around a curve. It is believed here that the floor extension, common to all Pennsy cars, was responsible for the accident. Death was due to internal injuries about the abdomen.

1,000 MILES IN OLD MOTOR TO PROVE WORTH OF ENGINE

Van Evra Martin, Milwaukee Driver, Proposes "Nonstop" Test For Machine Used Four Years.

To reassure himself and critics of old automobiles, Van Evra Martin, a Milwaukee young man, has proposed to make a trip of 1,000 miles in a car four years old, to be known as a "nonstop" test, because the motor will not be allowed to rest during the trial.

Mr. Martin is taking the trip to drive a car which has been driven 40,000 miles and is ready for the scrap heap.

The automobile is a Rambler turned out of the Thomas B. Jeffrey plant at Kenosha. It has been driven recently about Milwaukee, and a careful record made of its actions and expense in keeping. Since it has been in the possession of Mr. Martin he has determined that a trip to test the power of an old motor would be interesting to motorists as well as manufacturers.

The car making this trip is a regular 2 cylinder, 18 horse engine Rambler and as stated above has been driven 40,000 miles. The endurance of the Rambler is clearly proven in the record of this car which is no better than any Rambler sold from stock. There are more Ramblers in Rock county than any other car. New models are ready for your inspection and I shall be pleased to demonstrate them to you at any time. Write, telephone or call.

Forty members of the Janesville Chapter of the Daughters of the Revolution took part in the Washington's Birthday celebration at the home of Mrs. Fred Van de Water on Third street yesterday.

The program consisted of a paper by Mrs. Charles Tarrant on incidents in the life of the first president, a piano selection by Mrs. W. T. Sherer and Mrs. Mary Doty, and a vocal solo by Miss Harriet McKenney. Mrs. A. P. Lovejoy won the prize at a question guessing puzzle arranged by Mrs. M. G. Jeffris. A delicious luncheon was served late in the afternoon.

Nearly four hundred attended the masquerade ball given under the auspices of Rebekah Lodges No. 171 and 28 at Assembly hall last evening. Nearly a hundred were in costume and the spectacle presented was beautiful and alluring. Music was discoursed by the Gray-Carter orchestra of seven pieces and the festivities lasted until one o'clock this morning. The proceeds of the entertainment will be used in furnishing a room at the Odd Fellows' home in Green Bay.

Garbed in colonial costume, about thirty friends of Edward Marvin and family who reside at 76 Palm street surprised them last evening. Several hours were devoted to progressive clinch, the first prizes being won by Mrs. Albert Reeder and J. H. Halford and the consolation going to Mrs. Fox and Charles Shuler. In a cherry tree game, the trophy was captured by Miss Laura Drake of Monroe. A three-course luncheon was served and afterward one of the gentlemen favored the guests with a number of entertaining photograph selections.

Several friends of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. O'Grady assembled at the home, 151 North Hickory street, last evening to assist in a celebration of their twenty-sixth wedding anniversary. At half past six o'clock an elaborate seven course dinner was served and thereafter the guests were pleasantly entertained by a series of musical selections rendered by Miss Mary and Joseph O'Grady.

The ordinary of the Hotel Myers, attractively decorated in the national colors, was the scene yesterday of a very enjoyable dinner party given by Miss Irma Zieker in honor of her guests, Miss George Arms of Austin, Minn., and Miss Lottie Jones of Maywood, Ill.

Miss Helen Nash has returned from Chicago, where she attended the wedding of Miss Helen Martin. Miss Sybil Nash of Chicago accompanied her and will visit in the city until Monday.

The St. Cecelia Singing society of St. Mary's church was entertained at the home of Edward Heider on South Jackson street Thursday evening. After the program delicious refreshments were served and the evening proved most enjoyable.

Miss Etta Pond is in Chicago attending a number of the grand opera performances.

The Philomathian club is meeting this afternoon with Mrs. Fred Koebele, 277 Prospect avenue.

SLEEPING CARS ARE A POSSIBILITY NOW

Through Service With Chicago by Interurban Lines is a Reality Today.

Since the announcement of the sleeping car service on the electric line between St. Louis, Mo., and Decatur, Ill., various rumors and semi-official reports have been heard here regarding the possibilities of a similar service on the lines from Freeport and Janesville to Chicago. It is safe to say that the day soon is coming when fast night express trains will be run from Janesville through to Chicago over the new Belvidere line.

Each innovation will come within the year depends largely upon the development of certain southern Wisconsin lines and feeders the coming summer, says an Illinois exchange.

Switch at Watch Factory.
Preparations are being made rapidly for the transferring of the Belvidere and other interurban cars to the third rail line at the new switch which is to be installed near the watch factory at Elgin. With this facility it is believed that cars will within a comparatively short time be run through from Madison to Chicago.

When such conditions become operative it is probable that a seven-hour night service will be established between the two furthermost points. It will then become possible for traveling men and other patrons of the fine cars to take the cars at Madison, go to bed and waken the next morning in Chicago. Stops would likely be made at Janesville, Beloit, Rockford, Belvidere, Marengo, Elgin and Wheaton.

It would be such a service as has been the dream of the traveling public but which has always seemed visionary. It would be a service which would be as greatly appreciated as it would be patronized.

Dining Car Service Soon.
As soon as the watch factory switch is connected with the third rail, it is probable that the dining car "Florence" will make regular trips over the line. Another innovation is the establishment of a chair car service between the more distant points along the new connections of the A. E. and C. line.

Under One System.
Most of these plans cannot be carried out until the roads all come under one system. Such a consolidation is expected in the near future. At present the inter-changeable mileage system is in use, and tickets bought over the system can be used on a dozen others in northern Illinois and southern Wisconsin. General Manager E. C. Faber of the A. E. and C. company is chairman of the committee on inter-changeable mileage of the Interurban Railway association, and to him is credited the system of mileage now in vogue.

The running time between Belvidere and Elgin was shortened twenty-five minutes by an order issued yesterday.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Amos Rehberg returned last evening from a trip through the southwest, having visited Hot Springs, Ark., and various Texas cities.

TO ADDRESS LETTER WITH STATE FIRST

Novel Idea Is Projected to Avoid Delays in Transmission of the Mail.

It is probable that a new method of addressing letters and all mail matter will be inaugurated soon if the postoffice and railway postal clerks will take the matter up with the government. The new plan is practical in the reverse of the present form and from present indications would be a good one.

If the new rule is carried into effect the addresses on the letters or other mail matter will be practically upside down. The name of the state will come first, then the city, and finally the name and street number.

Although it may take the public some time to get used to the change it is probable that when it is carried out the public will realize its usefulness.

Many persons have sent letters or other mail to friends and after waiting patiently for an answer for some time, have written again. They invariably receive a reply to the effect that the first communication had just been received, as it had gone astray in the postal department. It is said that under the proposed new method the mistakes and delays in the delivery of mails would be reduced to a minimum.

The new plan would be especially helpful to railway postal clerks in sorting the mail. These men have to work like beavers in the mail cars in order to sort the mail. With the present method they have to read the entire address before they find what state the letter is going to. After the state has been found the next clerk has to find out the city by reading the entire address, and so on.

In many instances the clerk who is working at top speed simply looks at the name of the city and throws the letters into the bag for the mail of the state in which the city is. It happens frequently that there are cities of the same name in different states and consequently the letters often go to the wrong place and have to be returned.

Under the new rule the postal clerk could find the name of the state, as the first line of the address, then the city, and his work would end there. The city department could then find the street and number and everything would run like clockwork.

An example of the proposed new form follows:

Michigan,
Detroit,
412 Kirk St.,
J. R. Hamilton.

The present method of addressing letters is simply a custom, and if the government would recommend the new form it would not be long before it would be in use throughout the country.

FELL FROM ROOF OF NEW JEFFRIS HOME

Albert Schumann of Whitewater Dropped 25 Feet to the Frozen Gravel This Morning.

While at work on the roof of the new M. G. Jeffris residence in the third ward about eleven o'clock this morning, Albert Schumann of Whitewater, an employee of the Janesville Corral Works, lost his equilibrium and fell 25 feet, striking the rough, frozen gravel on his right side. Russell's ambulance conveyed him to his boarding-house on Franklin street and Dr. W. H. Judd made an examination. He found that no bones were broken, but that the man had sustained serious internal injuries, had cut his right arm and sprained his right ankle. Mr. Schumann is a young man about twenty-two years of age.

Breese a day or two since. I have erected many fine pieces of work since but probably none for a person whose work is known so far and wide as was Bennett's.

SPECIAL AGENTS ARE WELL SCORED

POWER OF INTERIOR DEPARTMENT MEN LIMITED.

HOUSE GOES ON RECORD

Restricts Use of $250,000 for Salaries—Homestead Orders of President Are Severely Criticized.

Washington, Feb. 23.—The house in committee of the whole, placed itself squarely on record Friday in favor of limiting the power of special agents of the department of the interior, by a vote restricting the use of the appropriation of $250,000 covered by the sundry civil appropriation bill to pay the salaries of such agents.

By a vote of 104 to 17 the committee adopted the amendment which was offered by Mr. Mondell of Wyoming, and debated for two hours by Messrs. Cushman of Washington, Lacey of Iowa, Mann of Illinois, Burke of South Dakota, Reeder of Kansas, Bonyne of Colorado, Gronna of North Dakota, Steenerson of Minnesota, Gaines of Tennessee and Smith of Iowa.

During the debate the work of the special agents was severely condemned and the orders of the president regarding final proof on homesteads criticized as working unnecessary hardships upon settlers.

Before resuming consideration of the sundry civil appropriation bill the house, as in committee of the whole, passed 360 senate private pension bills in 30 minutes.

The sundry civil bill was still in the process of reading when the house adjourned at 6:45 p. m. and the consideration will be concluded Saturday.

For the Military Academy.

The senate, at Friday night's session passed the bill making appropriations for the support of the military academy. The bill, carrying $1,947,383, was passed just as it came from the committee, only ten minutes being consumed in the consideration of the measure.

A discussion lasting throughout the entire day, to which was added a futile night session, failed to secure final action in the senate on the amendments to the agricultural appropriation bill proposing to make an increase of $1,000,000 in the item for the support of the forest reserve. Forceful speeches were made by Senators Burkett, Depew and Beveridge in defense of the work of Chief Forester Pinchot, and opposed to the extension of the forest service by Senator Heyburn, who went into the entire subject.
